DROUGHT AND COLD WEATHER ADVANCE FUTURE PRICES

GENERAL NEWS IS MAINLY BULLISH.

Corn Shares Strength of Wheat, Though Trading Is Hampered by Lack of Outside Buying.

Grain values closed slightly higher, after a moderately active session. While there were several bullish indications, the outside demand was too small to justify any large advance, and the trading was within rather narrow limits. Prospects of dry weather in the Southwest and of frost in the upper portions of the belt were among the bullish factors. The Government and State reports were generally favorable, but it was apparent that there had been scattered damage. Fear of manipulation by the Chicago contingent cut some figure in the upward movement.

Livestock receipts caused a good early demand for corn. Later profit-taking caused a recession, but closing values were above those of the previous day.
